LOCATION

Dunblane is a town in the council area of Stirling in central Scotland. It is a commuter town, with many residents making use of good transport links to much of the Central Belt, including Glasgow and Edinburgh.

The town is served by Dunblane railway station, which has regular services to Stirling, Perth, Glasgow and Edinburgh. It is also a stop on the Caledonian Sleeper from Inverness, and several other long distance trains to Aberdeen, Dundee, Inverness, and even London. Dunblane is the northernmost station of Network Rail's Edinburgh to Glasgow Improvement Program, which includes electrification. Dunblane is the point at which the M9 motorway ends and joins the A9 dual carriageway north towards Perth.

The subjects are located on the southern side of High Street close to its junction with The Cross.

DESCRIPTION

The Subjects comprise a ground floor office/retail unit contained within a two storey building of stone construction with a rendered finish.

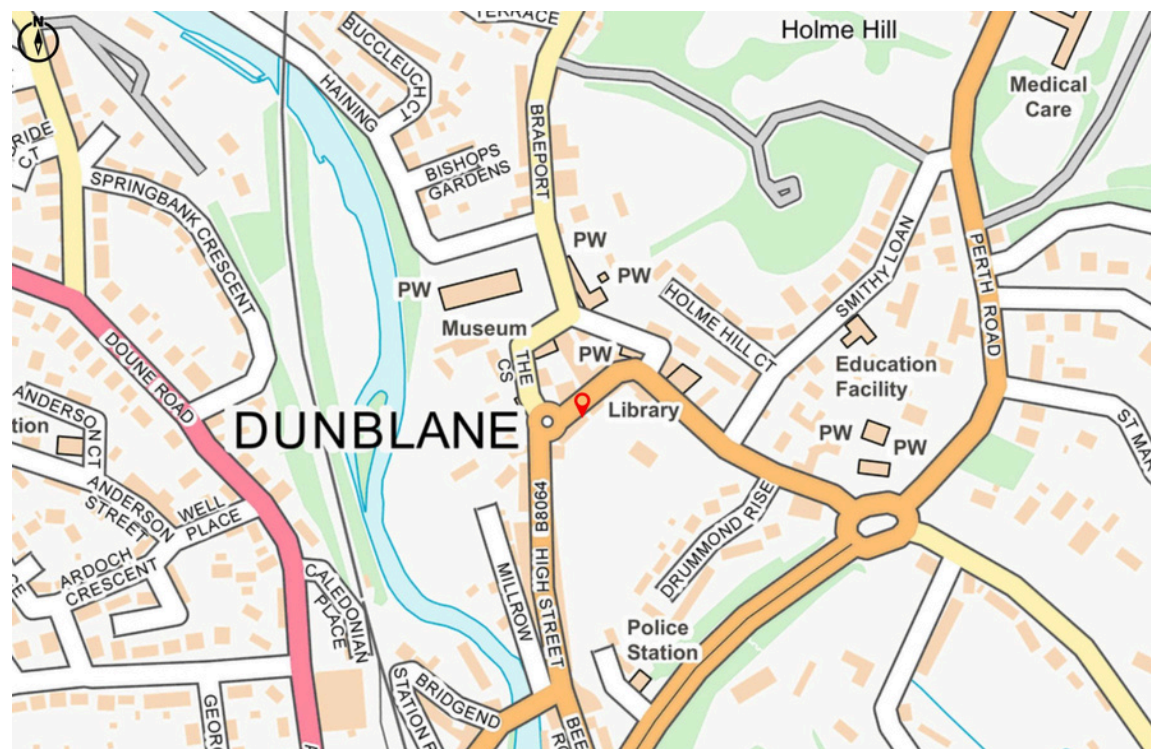

Internally the subjects provide a front retail/office space, rear meeting space with tea prep, w.c and shower facilities.

The property has recently undergone an extensive refurbishment to a high standard including installation of an electric heating system and shower facility.
